BIO

Sophia Odle joined Peoples Company in 2024. Her background is deeply intertwined with production agriculture, and she acts according to proven experience that every farmland property is unique and deserves specialized care.

Sophia's approach to farm management emphasizes stewardship and tailor-made strategies that achieve clients' personal and financial goals. Sophia is a service-oriented individual, and it brings her great joy that her services as a land manager enrich the lives of clients, farm operators, and others who interact with each farmland property.

Sophia has management experience with corn, soybeans, wheat, and specialty crops in the Midwest. She is also familiar with implementing regenerative agriculture and cover crop practices.

Sophia is a graduate of the University of Illinois with a degree in both agriculture and consumer economics, specializing in farm management, and agricultural education.
